As a result, WWF No Mercy sports a number of the newer WWF members.

The gameplay has also been tweaked in a number of ways. For instance, a weapon grabbed from the crowd in WWF No Mercy will not disappear when knocked from the player's hand. If you fall to the mat and wait to be reused. Another feature is the Special Referee match, which lets the player control the match's outcome. If you are overseeing a match with your favorite wrestler, you can help swing the fight in his favor. The player can regulate the timing of the three-count, and even lay the "smackdown" on a hated foe. In addition, a Ladder Match option has been included to allow players to recreate the excitement and tension of the classic ladder bouts.

As with all the Nintendo 64 wrestling games, WWF No Mercy is a four-player game. It also supports the Rumble Pak accessory to provide vibration feedback for every punch, kick, and block. Fans who also own the Transfer Pak will be able to transfer data from the Game Boy Color version to purchase items or upgrade their favorite wrestlers.
